The UK construction industry has enjoyed a decade of unprecedented boom, yet despite this, it is clear that the fabric and quality of a number of our nation's healthcare buildings still require improvement. The new Coalition Government's Comprehensive Spending Review has announced protection for the NHS revenue budget with only small savings in capital spend, but how will they deploy the resources? What are their expectations and given their continued push to drive down all costs, will standards in healthcare have to be compromised?

This one day event is for Architects, Built Environment & Healthcare professionals to debate and discuss the many complex issues of healthcare.

The event is supported by MAAP, Forbo and Northumbria University and will commence with a Keynote address from Sir Leonard Fenwick KBE.
